

About the Virtual 9th Air Force

Last Updated Tuesday, 08 February 2011

Headquartered at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., the 9th Air Force serves as the headquarters for U.S. Central Command Air Forces (USCENTAF), conducting U.S. air operations throughout Southwest Asia. The 9th Air Force is also an intermediate headquarters under Air Combat Command and is responsible for five active-duty flying wings, as well as overseeing the operational readiness of 18 designated units of the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve.

What you see here is just a virtual representation of the 9th Airforce, dedicated to the Lock-On Flaming Cliffs and DCS A-10C Air-Combat Flight Simulators. We do not hold any affiliations with the true 9th Air force whose website can be found here. We are just Air-Combat enthusiasts which hold strong attributions to the 9th Air force and have dedicated our virtual air force to their honor.

This air force is available to everybody who wishes to expand on their online experience with Modern Air-Combat. We welcome all new recruits and are only more than willing to teach what we have learned to those willing to learn.

It has to be said, this online collaboration is what keeps Lomac and other flight simulators alive. You will find a new perspective on gaming and a new interest in air-combat when joining forces within a squadron environment. With this new community we can all come together and enjoy ourselves which at the end of the day, is what this virtual air force is all about.

Feel free to join us or say hello.
